

PP Adds TRANSgender HORMONE Therapy for MINORS

Planned Parenthood now offers hormone therapy to MINORS. Their reasoning is gender confused youth may have difficulty getting sex “change” hormones because “a lot of doctors can be judgmental.” PP says it’s important to give children “medications that affect the changes they’re looking for.”

While other transgender hormone dispensing clinics require a therapist’s letter before giving out the body-altering drugs, Planned Parenthood does not. The organization’s policy is to simply inform gender dysphoric youth of the risks of treatment. When the patient acknowledges having been told the risks, treatment begins. Planned Parenthood will give your son or daughter synthetic hormones to stop puberty even in children as young as 10-years-old—despite the near-universal agreement that insufficient long-term studies have been conducted on the use of these hormones for the purpose of “gender transition” in children. Once s/he reaches the age where puberty is supposed to start, they’ll start another set of hormones called “cross-sex hormones.” And the child will of necessity be on drugs the rest of his/her life to maintain this false identity — a lifelong financial relationship tying them to PP. But of course they deny its their incentive.

This anti-science social engineering disregards the fact that every single cell of our bodies has either male XY chromosome or the female XX chromosome, except in very rare circumstances. Those than 37 trillion cells scream out sexual identity and bathe every thought, every process, every biological response in “maleness” or “femaleness.” Science is demonstrating more new ways every day that chromosomes are far from mere “labels,” arbitrarily assigned to us by a doctor. This distinction is written into every cell by design and directs the processes at the most basic genetic level.

Hormone therapy is linked to a much greater risk of suicide compared to those not taking hormones. How can this be “healthcare?”

CA Strips PARENTS Of MORE Rights

ORANGE COUNTY, California, April 19, 2018

California enacted the California Healthy Youth Act in 2015, but only now are its controversial provisions starting to take effect in classrooms. Under the auspices of “health,” the law says it will equip students to develop “healthy attitudes” on “gender [and] sexual orientation,” among other things. It also says it will inform students about the “effectiveness and safety of all FDA-approved contraceptive methods,” and facilitate “objective discussion” about “parenting, adoption, and abortion.”

Among the teaching materials approved for use under this law are a study guide for the transgender children’s book I Am Jazz, as well as a “sexual health toolkit.” The toolkit outlines the views and “approved discussion guidelines” for teachers, healthcare providers, counselors AND parents. Of course, they only allow ONE perspective.

In a 3/29/18 memo to the Orange County Board of Education, Orange County Department of Education general counsel Ronald Wenkart says that the law’s opt-out provision “does not apply to instruction, materials, or programming that discusses gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, discrimination, harassment, bullying, intimidation, relationships, or family and does not discuss human reproductive organs.”

Parents who disagree with the state’s LGBT positions “may not excuse their children from this instruction,” Wenkart continues. He then suggests that parents still have the right to “advise their children that they disagree with” such lessons compensates for this restriction.

(Nice of them to give parents permission to disagree, wasn’t it?)

He claims that “Parents do not have a constitutional right to excuse their children from portions of the school curriculum that they find objectionable.”

Kira Davis, a resident of Orange County, California, recommends “Parents who pull their children out should ensure the school does not record it as an EXCUSED absence.

“The reason your public school demands you call to excuse your child’s absence is because they lose state and federal dollars on every unexcused absence. If you really want to make an impact, hit them where it hurts.”

COACH’S CORNER!

He was 15, Hispanic, and had just sat through a Positively Waiting presentation. Nervous, twisting his hands, shifting his weight, looking away and taking deep breaths. He said he wanted to “ask me a question,” but he just couldn’t quite get the words out. I waited with my body language and face open, welcoming.

“Miss, I wanted you to know I really appreciate what you said. It made me think.”

Twisting, shifting, gulp.

“I don’t want to use girls, like you said. I don’t want to be like that.”

Looks away, steps back. Gulp.

“I thought about what you said... and I would really like one of those pins... but, do you think I can do it? I mean, really?”

This young man was desperate for someone to believe he could do the impossible — not act on every sexual impulse just because he could.

He talked to me for awhile about the kind of man he wanted to be — a protector, not a user. A truth teller, not a liar. A man in control of himself — something he hadn’t seen to much of before.

When he left with is “I am worth waiting for” pin, and the desire to earn the love of a woman who would have the honor of wearing it, his shoulders were back, he stood straighter.

We agreed the challenge would be BIG and DIFFICULT, but somehow, because an adult had said, “I know you can do this. You can be a great role model,” he wasn’t afraid to try anymore.

Have you told a teen you believe in them lately?
