

400% INCREASE IN ADOLESCENTS HAVING BREAST REMOVAL OR AUGMENTATION SURGERIES

Minors having chest reconstruction surgeries increased by approximately 400% across the United States. Researchers from Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tennessee, documented 1130 chest mutilating surgeries performed on children younger than 18 years old between 2016-2019, according to an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA).

The article noted that the number could be much higher since masculinizing chest reconstruction (e.g., mastectomy) and feminizing chest reconstruction (e.g., augmentation mammoplasty) may be performed in outpatient and ambulatory surgery settings.

The explanation for the increase seems to be there is BIG MONEY to be made in “gender-affirming care” — a euphemism for cosmetically altering a person to appear as the opposite sex. Their post-surgery pharmaceutical-plus-office-visit leash will last a lifetime, or at least as long as the patient’s insurance or taxpayer dollars will cover it. The number of industries springing up all over the country to cater to (and profit from) confused or indoctrinated minors, is mushrooming.

REASONS FOR DE-TRANSITIONING

Sadly, there is significant evidence that, if left alone, a majority of gender-confused young people will outgrow their desire to physically change their bodies. It is also unfortunate that extended use of puberty blockers and cross sex hormones will cause sterility long before their brains mature enough to understand the irreversible harm they have done.

No girl experiencing the perplexing changes of puberty wants to become a balding, short, eunuch with a paunch and a micro-penis, but that isn’t the vision she will be sold. No guy experiencing the contempt for masculinity and all things “cis” imagines his new life as a “woman” will be a perpetual series of hair removal treatments and 25 different daily meds. But the stories being told by detransitioners (those who are trying to stop or reverse the process) consistently mention the lack of detractors who wanted them to consider ALL the ramifications of transitioning. Instead, many attest there were multiple healthcare professionals, mental health providers, activists and drug peddlers (all with a financial stake in their choices) affirming, promoting, and advocating for mutilation.

What was once presented as “a tiny minority who need our compassion,” is now Big Business, and the long range cost of these medical interventions appears in hindsight to be significantly more in human capital than anyone ever anticipated.

COACH'S CORNER

Adolescents are hardwired to seek challenges in order to develop and mature. Those experiences help teens become independent, and better able to understand their abilities and preferences. At the same time, teens are likely to choose unhealthy challenges and risks, such as using drugs or driving recklessly.

A study by University College London (UCL) of adolescents social-emotional system shows teens crave stimulation, risks and challenge. While they may understand the consequences of their behavior, the desire to take risks is stronger than their common sense. Researchers concluded that 14-year olds demonstrated the most risky behavior.

So be prepared to enter the risk-taking phase of parenting, Coach! Plan ahead for opportunities to present challenges and new situations for your teens to test themselves physically and socially. But don't forget failure is part of the maturing process.

Team sports is one option, but so are intern or apprenticeships. Volunteering at an animal shelter, helping with a car restoration or remodeling project, serving at a summer camp are all opportunities to get that brain maturing!
